

TAFT'S DEPARTURE FROM CALIFORNIA

People of Coast Gave Him a Good Time While He Stayed

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 17.—President Taft had a very good time today, and his special train is now headed east and north. During the past two days Mr. Taft has been going about under cloudless skies, and a temperature ranging about 85 in the shade. In thirty-six hours he will be in the snow-capped hills of Montana.

His departure from the state was marked by the same big crowds that greeted him all through California. At Long Beach, Pomona, Ontario, Riverside and San Bernardino great throng gathered, and the president's private car was literally covered with blossoms thrown by children. The crowds greatly impressed the president.

At Riverside the president spoke to the women about suffrage, telling them that they now had a duty to perform, and should perform it, as the eyes of all the east were upon them.

While the president was motoring to Long Beach this morning Secretary Hilles remained in Los Angeles to talk politics. Hilles, since he was nominated by Senator Smoot, of Utah, for chairman of the next republican national committee, has received many pledges of support. He has not, however, indicated by word or action, whether he will accept.

The president's train is being guarded tonight with usual care, though the reported attempt to dynamite the train in California may have brought about just a little more vigilance on the part of the guards.

ANTI-TAFT CAMPAIGN HAS GOT A START MOSES CLAPP THERE

His Principal Theme the Hardships of the Arizona Constitution

LADIES SYMPATHY WANTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—A bitter exhortation of President Taft promises to carry the fight for the republican presidential nomination in 1912 to the American frontier, and a plea for the aid of American women marked the opening here tonight of the campaign of the progressive element of the republican party for nomination of Senator Robert M. La Follette as the republican candidate for president.

Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, brought the denunciation of President Taft to its sharpest climax after Senator Crawford, of South Dakota, had been interrupted by a dissenter in the audience.

Calling the chief executive's action in the Arizona statehood matter "the blackest chapter in all tyranny outside the absolute despotism of an unbridled king," Clapp said: "Now whether you believe in the recall or not, I think you will agree with me that it is not for you to say whether the people of Arizona shall have the recall. We had this question up in congress. We said the people of Arizona must vote on the question again, and which ever way the voted, they would be allowed to come into the union. And my friends, the president of the United States vetoed that resolution and one providing that the people must vote again, but must vote against recall was passed, although they can put it back into their constitution after admission."

"That is a fine lesson to teach the people on the threshold of admission to this union. What, think you, would the spirits of those men whose bones lie mouldering in the battlefields of the republic, if looking down, they could realize that the price of admission to this union was a mutilation of the electorate of an individual state."

Charles E. Merriam, of Chicago, voiced a promise to carry the fight to freedom, saying that Senator La Follette and his followers would make a progressive appeal to the women as well as the men. Senator Lorimer came in for attacks by all speakers.

BURGULARS PROVE TO BE VERY SMALL BOYS

Culprits Eleven and Eight Years Old Act Like Grown-up Criminals

In the court of Justice Burdick this morning two little boys, admittedly thieves and housebreakers, will tell a story in which denouement has followed denouement thus far in its unfolding and in which some further chapters may be written at that time. The little fellows, one 11 and the other 8 years of age, fearfully admit burglarizing a house and cutting their plunder but claim their cache was placed and that their plunder was stolen for a second time. The older boy promises to make restitution, to earn the money to do so, but there are features of his story which demand further investigation, more satisfactory explanation.

Last evening a call was received from Quarry Canyon asking that an officer be sent up, and Constable C. N. Thomas went to the address given. There he was told of a robbery on Sunday afternoon. It was stated that the screen door had been cut and a wire used to unlatch the door. After this the house was entered and a pocket book containing about $12, and the owner's watch, was taken. A neighbor was suspected but investigation proved that such suspicion was without foundation.

In the course of his inquiries Constable Thomas learned that a boy in school had boasted to companions that he had about $15 cached upon the hill. This boy was interviewed by the officer and soon was tearfully confessing. He implicated another boy, a child of 8 years and told how they went to the house, found a hole in the screen door, used a wire to open it, obtained access to the house and took a pocket book containing a $5 bill and five silver dollars. They waited until dark and then went up the hill and buried their plunder in a cave. The younger child, striking matches for the older boy to see by in his work. He had asked the little fellow to accompany him on yesterday but he had refused and going alone had found their cache rifled.

At this time the smaller child was alone had found their cache rifled. The younger child, striking matches for the older boy to see by in his work. He had asked the little fellow to accompany him on yesterday but he had refused and going alone had found their cache rifled.

Later one of the other boys told of having seen the older boy on the hill near a pile of stones striking matches. He stoutly maintains that he had a pipe concealed there and was smoking coffee. He was suspected of having himself dug up the buried money and hiding it elsewhere, but stuck to his "smoking story."

The youngsters took some change to the owner of the stolen money and told him it was money he had saved, that he was sorry he had stolen the pocket book, that it had been stolen from him also and that he would work and earn $10 and pay it to him. The owner refused to take the change from the little fellow and the two children will be given a hearing before Justice Burdick today.

HOW THE DEADLOCK WAS BROKEN UP

Same Hearsay Testimony in the Case of Senator Stephenson

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 17.—Purported statements of others that Edward M. Hines, lumberman, helped "put over" the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson and that, Hines, and Stephenson each contributed $55,000 to a pool of $110,000 to secure the election of several democratic members of the Wisconsin legislature on March 4, 1909, so that Stephenson might be elected, formed the basis of sensational testimony adduced in today's hearing of the senatorial investigation committee. Thomas Morris, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, made statements to that effect, declaring that G. W. Cook, of Duluth, who figured prominently in the first former investigation gave him that information. He said that Cook told him that Robert J. Shields, of Superior, Wisconsin also mentioned in the Lorimer case, was paid $7,500 for services in putting the deal through.

Morris, however, admitted that his statements were to be taken as second hand information. He testified that his informant told him "that after charges were made in the legislative committee concerning Stephenson's nomination and while his election was still pending, Hines went to Stephenson at Washington and told him that because of the charges the senator could not be reelected, and that R. John Shields was employed to carry on the work; that subsequently Shields went to Washington and obtained a check signed in blank from Stephenson and subsequently appeared at Madison with a large display of money; that there had been a deadlock in the Wisconsin legislature for several weeks but suddenly it was announced that on a certain day Stephenson would be elected, and that on that day, March 4, 1909, three democratic members absented themselves, thus giving Stephenson a majority; that Shields demanded $10,000 for what he had done but Stephenson and Hines after having a dispute over amount handed him $7,500."

Morris testified that Cook's statement was made to him in a lawyer's office this summer in the presence of State Senator Paul O. Heintz, former assistant attorney general and A. C. Titus, both of Wisconsin. He said that W. H. Kittell, of Madison, had given him information about Shields going to Washington and getting the blank check.

Chairman Heyburn immediately issued subpoenas for those mentioned.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF ZAPATISTAS

Their Leader Escaped After a Fierce Battle

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17.—Advices from Cuernavaca say that the Zapatistas were cut to pieces in the battle of Tepetlax yesterday, but that Zapata himself escaped. The Zapatistas were caught between the forces of General Plutarco and Col. Blanquet. Two hundred of them are said to have been killed, and a large number wounded, and many taken prisoners. The rebels entrenched themselves on the hillside close by a village.

The federalists advanced from opposite directions, and cut off the rebel retreat.

Behind their breastworks the federalists withheld their fire until the rebels were within two hundred yards of the trenches. When they opened fire their aim was ineffective and the federalists sent their sharpshooters to the end of the trenches, and their fire drove the rebels from cover. Coming into the open, the federalists attacked the government troops, and the battle was waged for several hours, in which time the Zapatistas were completely routed. Most of their horses were captured.

LURED TO DEATH BY A TELEGRAM

Pitiful Incident of Wreck of an Australian Steamer

VICTORIA, Oct. 17.—News was brought by the Zealandia, which arrived from Australia today, of the wreck of the Australian sailing steamer Rosedale with all hands. The steamer ran into heavy gales after leaving the north coast for Sydney, and foundered. Some small wreckage, mostly buckets and deck gear, washed ashore.

The steamer carried seven passengers and a crew of nineteen. Mr. and Mrs. McKay, two of the passengers, were severely dealt with in fate. They had received a telegram "Mother dying, come at once" intended for another family of the same name, and without waiting to investigate they started for Sydney and were among the victims.
